

Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy Named to 2009 National Law Journal's Plaintiffs' Hot List

For doing "exemplary, cutting-edge work" with "at least one significant win and an impressive track record..."

The National Law Journal has again named Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy to its "Plaintiffs' Hot List." The Plaintiffs' Hot List identifies firms which have done "exemplary, cutting-edge work" with "at least one significant win and an impressive track record within the previous three to five years." Significant wins included high-stakes cases and cases that could effect significant social change or civil rights gains. Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy has been included four times in the eight years that the National Law Journal has published the list. The National Law Journal noted that it chose firms that "struck us as representing the bar's best qualities and demonstrated unusual flair and creativity." Cotchett, Pitre & McCarthy was recognized for its impressive track record and for its results in In Re Bextra and Celebrix Mktg., Sales Practices and Prod. Liab. Litig., In Re Apple Computer Inc. Stock Option and Plan Touch of America Holdings Inc. v. Goldman, Sachs & Co.
