

Governor Jerry Brown Reappoints CPM Partner Nishimura to California Commission on Judicial Performance

Governor Brown reappointed Nanci Nishimura to the California Commission on Judicial Performance. She is one of two lawyers on the 11-member independent state agency responsible for investigating complaints of judicial misconduct and incapacity, authorized to discipline sitting and former judges, with shared authority with local courts over court commissioners and referees. Nishimura was appointed in 2011 and reappointed to serve until 2019.
